C14 / Advising the policy process

Topic : Preconference

Chair : David Aubin (Université Catholique de Louvain)

GENERAL OBJECTIVES, RESEARCH QUESTIONS AND SCIENTIFIC RELEVANCE

Decision-making relies on multiple sources of information and opinions that emanate both from public organizations at different levels of power and from civil society. This set of policy advice providers constitutes the policy advisory system (Halligan, 1995). Policy advice provides the merits of policy options and their potential to deliver the desired outcomes.

The lecture will present and establish a dialogue between four streams of literature which study of the relationships between advice-givers and the decision-makers in the policy process: Policy advisory systems (Craft and Wilder, 2017), knowledge utilization (Boswell, 2008), policy work (Colebatch and Hoppe, 2018) and ministerial advisors within the executive triangle (Shaw et Eichbaum, 2018). It will invite students to reflect on further theorization in this specific field of policy analysis.
