

T02P01 / Policy Styles in Theory and Practice

Topic : T02 / Comparative Public Policy sponsored by Journal of Comparative Policy Analysis

Chair : Michael Howlett (Simon Fraser University)

Second Chair : Jale Tosun (Heidelberg University)

GENERAL OBJECTIVES, RESEARCH QUESTIONS AND SCIENTIFIC RELEVANCE

The concept of policy styles has existed in the policy sciences since Richardson et al's groundbreaking work on Policy Styles in Western Europe appeared in 1982. However the concept remains under-developed both theoretically and empirically. This panel will bring together scholars from around the world to discuss aspects of the concept, including its purview and unit of analysis - sectoral, national, institutional - and its content and components in different countries.

CALL FOR PAPERS

The concept of policy styles has existed in the policy sciences since Richardson et al's groundbreaking work on Policy Styles in Western Europe appeared in 1982. However the concept remains under-developed both theoretically and empirically. This panel will bring together scholars from around the world to discuss aspects of the concept, including its purview and unit of analysis - sectoral, national, institutional - and its content and components in different countries.

T02P01 / Policy Styles in Theory and Practice

Chair : Michael Howlett (Simon Fraser University)

Second Chair : Jale Tosun (Heidelberg University)

Session 1

Friday, June 30th 13:45 to 15:45 (CJK 1 - 1)

Discussants

Jeremy Rayner (University of Saskatchewan)

The Concept of National Policy Styles

Michael Howlett (Simon Fraser University)

National welfare state policy styles

Carsten Jensen (Aarhus University)

Georg Wenzelburger (TU Kaiserslautern)

Grasping the policymaking style in an uncertain world

Philippe Zittoun (ENTPE - Ecole de l'aménagement durable des territoires)

Patrick Hassenteufel (Université Paris-Saclay)

The Concept of Policy Styles and its Application in Mexico: Comparative Case Studies at the National and Subnational Level

Raul Pacheco-Vega (Facultad Latinoamericana de Ciencias Sociales (FLACSO) Mexico)